

MATHEWS CONSTRUCTION

Inspired by the craftsmanship of the past and experienced in today's innovative building methods and technology, Mathews Construction is committed to delivering quality custom-built homes, additions, and remodels for its clients.

The husband and wife team, John and Beth Mathews of Mathews Construction, offer a unique combination of a construction industry expert, as well as a former commercial and real estate banker. Both are Auburn University graduates with John having completed over 200 homes throughout the Central Alabama region and the Lake Martin area, earning distinction for his craftsmanship and service. Beth has received many accolades in business, having been recognized by The Wall Street Journal and distinguished as one of the youngest Vice Presidents during her banking years.

John and Beth have been able to grow and differentiate Mathews Construction by offering a hands-on style that focuses on exceeding client expectations and making the building process enjoyable. Their hard work has been recognized by the company receiving national acclaim for its homes. Highlighted below are some of Mathews Construction's services and standards.

Site Considerations, Home Plans, & Design Selections: Mathews Construction can provide expertise when selecting a lot, helping clients consider factors such as easements and setbacks, topography, and soil testing. The architectural home design process can be daunting, but Mathews works as a team with the client's architect or by sharing its existing home plans to meet the client's needs. Mathews Construction also offers a full-service interior design consultation to assist clients from start to finish.

Exquisite Workmanship & Attention to Detail: At Mathews Construction, the appreciation of quality work is evident. The company, which is licensed and insured, only utilizes craftsmen that have proven expertise and skill to work on its clients' homes. Mathews Construction takes pride in its workmanship from the structural integrity of the home's foundation and framing to the beauty of the home's millwork and cabinetry.

Building Green: Mathews Construction understands the importance of building energy-efficient, sustainable homes for its clients. Some of the company's green practices include the installation of Low E windows, tankless water heaters, spray foam insulation, high-efficiency HVAC systems with programmable thermostats, energy-efficient appliances, and reclaimed products.

Project Management: With the company's operational systems promoting organized procedures and quality control, Mathews Construction delivers on-site supervision, efficient project scheduling, budget management, and timely project completion. Proactive communication is also an important part of the construction management process. The company's clients are provided with a clear understanding of the various construction stages and the status of their residence.

Fiduciary Responsibility: Mathews Construction appreciates the value of your money. The company focuses on delivering quality custom work at competitive prices and is committed to protecting its clients' financial interests.

Let Mathews Construction answer any questions you have about future construction projects.
